Session Titles & Descriptions

February 24, 2026, Yvette Lee, PharmD, BCPS

Polypharmacy in Older Adults: Reducing Medication-Related Problems Through Geriatric-Friendly Best Practices

Refresh your knowledge of age-related changes that affect medications, identify high-risk drugs for older adults, and apply geriatric-friendly principles to reduce adverse events. Explore the scope and drivers of polypharmacy, including prescribing cascades, and learn practical steps non-prescribers can take to reduce medication overload and harm.

March 24, 2026, Nick Lewis, PharmD, BCGP, Consonus Health

Antibiotic Stewardship

This session will explore practical strategies for implementing and strengthening antibiotic stewardship programs in aging services settings. Participants will learn how to promote appropriate prescribing, engage interdisciplinary teams, and use data to guide decision-making. Join us to gain tools and best practices that support high-quality care while meeting regulatory expectations.

FACULTY

Debbie Rayburn, RN, BSHCA, LNHA, has spent over the past 3 decades in Senior Care, serving both in for-profit and not-for-profit settings. Early in her nursing career, she stumbled upon LTC “quite by accident” and fell in love with the rewarding work of serving seniors. She has worked directly in communities as Director of Nursing, Healthcare Administrator, among many other roles. Long before CMS required QAPI, Debbie became a student of continuous quality improvement methods, with a firm belief that anything can be improved by understanding systems and applying the methods that lead to sustained improvement in care and life for residents.

Debbie has been in the role of VP of Operations for two prominent for-profit senior care companies in Oregon. For the past 18 years, she was the Chief Healthcare Officer at Pacific Retirement Services, overseeing healthcare in CCRCs in 7 states. She has been an adjunct professor at Southern Oregon University, authored memory care programs, written and taught C.N.A. certification programs, and has fought to highlight the unique and honored role of nurses who have chosen Gerontological nursing as their specialty. Desiring to continue the pursuit of excellence in long term care, she now provides consultative services to senior care settings and organizations.
